Children of substance-abusing parents: dynamics and treatment. Christine Huff Fewell and Shulamith Lala Ashenberg Straussner (2011).
This book is intended as a reference for all mental health professionals and students who need to understand and treat this population. It offers a look at treatment options and programmatic interventions across the life span. The contributors include a range of experts who provide evidence-based clinical and programmatic strategies for working with children of alcohol and other substance-abusing parents of any age and in almost any practice setting.

This seventh edition of a trusted resource for professionals, families, and students presents extensive coverage of crucial developmental, clinical, educational, family, and intervention issues related to all aspects of children with disabilities including cerebral palsy, epilepsy, and blindness and visual impairments.

Congenital disorders sourcebook. (2013).
This book contains basic consumer information about nonhereditary birth defects and disorders related to prematurity, gestational injuries, prenatal and perinatal infections, maternal health conditions during pregnancy, and birth complications, including cerebral palsy, spina bifida, fetal alcohol spectrum disorders, and cleft lip and palate.

Cystic fibrosis. J. Stuart Elborn (2014).
Cystic fibrosis (CF) is one of the most common hereditary diseases. The discovery of the cystic fibrosis transmembrane conductance regulator (CFTR) gene 25 years ago set the stage for unraveling the pathogenesis of CF lung disease, continuous refinement of symptomatic treatments and the development of mutation-specific therapies, which are now becoming available for a subgroup of patients. This monograph provides information on all aspects of CF lung disease, from infancy to adulthood, including details of the disease process, improvements in early diagnosis and monitoring, therapeutic approaches, and patient care. It discusses the steps that will be required for further improvement of the life expectancy and quality of life of CF patients.

Epilepsy. Howard P. Goodkin (2014).
This book summarizes the knowledge and practices of expert epilepsy specialists in a concise, practical pocketbook for everyday use by treating physicians. Early intervention specialists may find the chapter on special topics in pediatric epilepsy useful.

Epilepsy in children and adolescents. James Wheless (2013).
This book provides guidance professionals need to diagnose and manage seizures in a young patient. Beginning with an overview of the classification of seizure syndromes, the authors take a practical approach to a common but complex clinical challenge. Aimed at both professionals and trainees in neurology, this book will also be a useful guide for all primary health professionals caring for pediatric patients with this condition.

Fetal alcohol spectrum disorders: interdisciplinary perspectives. Jo Egerton, Carolyn Blackburn, and Barry Carpenter (2014).
Fetal alcohol spectrum disorders (FASDS) have emerged as a major phenomenon within the education, health, criminal justice, and social care systems of many countries, with prevalence figures suggesting that one in a hundred children and young people have FASDS. In this publication, academics, professionals, and families from around the world have shared expertise and insights on FASDS.
This book provides basic consumer health information about heritable disorders, including disorders resulting from abnormalities in specific genes, such as hemophilia, sickle cell disease, cystic fibrosis and chromosomal disorders such as Down syndrome.

This all-in-one guide covers the whole range of often co-existing neuro-behavioral disorders in children from attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD), obsessive-compulsive disorder, and anxiety, to autism spectrum disorders, nonverbal learning disabilities, and disorders of executive dysfunction.

This book is the first to report on pioneering efforts to move the treatment of substance-abusing parents forward by embracing their roles and experiences as mothers and fathers directly and continually across the course of treatment.

This volume addresses the myriad of issues relating to premature births in the United States, both in national context and compared with other countries.

The preemie primer: a complete guide for parents of premature babies from birth through the toddler years and beyond. Jennifer Gunter (2010).
This book is a comprehensive resource, covering topics from delivery, hospitalization, and preemie development to parenting multiples, handling health issues, and finding special-needs programs.

For Kate Hopper, pregnancy is downright unpleasant. Doctor concerns at a routine check-up give way to a harrowing, poignant, and occasionally hysterical journey through premature motherhood, from the starting point of "leaking a little protein" to the early delivery of her tiny daughter because of severe preeclampsia and the beginning of a new chapter of frightful, lifelong love.

This textbook and training tool presents a comprehensive, interdisciplinary framework for delivering effective health care to children with disabilities and chronic illnesses.

All major aspects of homelessness are analyzed, with recommendations for what is needed to improve current programs or establish new ones. Chapters set out the particular needs of parents, children, and teens as well as homeless subpopulations, such as youth who age out of foster care. This book presents a real-world framework for services that are client-centered, are integrated across provider systems, and follow families in their transition to stable housing.

Having a baby is a life-changing event for parents, and giving birth prematurely can bring a complex set of challenges and emotions to an already intense experience. In this book, Dr. Su Laurent guides parents through having a premature baby, giving them the tools they need to parent confidently.

New DVDs - Check Them Out!

This program features Dr. Harvey Karp and other experts and practitioners. Family members who have been affected by domestic violence are also interviewed. The program awakens the viewer to take action in order to prevent physical and psychological injury to children.

This DVD shows single parents how to prioritize the needs of their children while still maintaining their own health, interests, and activities.

This DVD provides strategies for single parents to meet the varying needs and unique challenges of their children from birth to adolescence.

New Books - Check Them Out!

This book helps enhance the social-emotional development of infants and young children with learning activities, handouts, and more. Specially developed to complement ASQ:SE-2, this resource shares practical social-emotional strategies with parents of children from birth to age 6.

This book presents real-world solutions for use with children birth to three, with or without an autism diagnosis. This practical guide includes suggestions for strengthening critical skills during daily routines, from dressing in the morning to getting ready for bed. Early interventionists and other professionals will learn how to coach families in weaving these activities into everyday life with their child, so that intervention continues long after the professional goes home.

This book addresses parents' most frequently asked questions in a clear Q&A layout.
This book examines childhood hearing loss and raising and educating deaf children. It includes personal testimonies and practical advice from parents.

This book details aspects of medical care such as pain, sleep, feeding, and respiratory problems that will help parents increase their knowledge and provide even better care. Tables and key points summarize discussions for clear, quick reference, while case studies and stories illustrate how different families approach decision making, communication, care plans, and informed consent.

This text: (1) addresses the needs of those studying child abuse from a cultural perspective; (2) provides a general profile of today's perpetrators of child abuse as well as conditions that may facilitate the abuse; (3) provides information on current modes of child abuse; (4) provides discussions on long-term consequences for adult victims of child abuse; and, (5) provides details in terms of criminal justice responses to child abuse in the United States and internationally.

Childhood speech and language disorders: supporting children and families on the path to communication. Suzanne M. Ducharme, 2016. (WM 475 D826 2016 ECI).
This book provides comprehensive information about speech and language development and the interventions process. It delves into the fears, concerns, and questions parents face when something goes wrong and provides information and resources as well as support and perspective.

This practical guide supports the crucial development of empathy in young children through the provision of simple strategies and empathy building activities, enabling practitioners to help children become emotionally attuned, confident communicators and therefore happy, fulfilled learners.

This text provides guidance on assessment and intervention with both verbal and nonverbal communication of infants, toddlers, and preschoolers. It offers practical guidelines for functional methods that highlight language use within the daily routines of the home and classroom. It covers assessment and intervention of both verbal and nonverbal communication, including augmentative and alternative communication (AAC), with young children who need support in learning to communicate. Also included are valuable resources, tables, and materials particularly useful for clinicians in practice.

This guidebook gives parents the information needed to obtain services for deaf or hard of hearing children and covers advocacy strategies to resolve disputes and disagreements.
This book furnishes child-focused mental health providers with information on how to address common emotional and behavioral problems exhibited by preschool and kindergarten-age children. It illustrates practical and effective interventions that can easily be implemented by clinicians working in educational settings, as well as by clinical psychologists and other mental health providers working with children in non-school settings. In addition, it emphasizes working with parents of young children who are exhibiting behaviors of concern.

This guide enables those working with young children to better understand, manage and support children's relationship with food. It gives guidance and advice about how to help children to develop psychologically healthy eating habits and behaviors, and how to tackle feeding issues such as picky eating, obesity, and food anxiety. It includes a reference section for trouble-shooting, which contains advice on how special needs such as autism can affect children's feelings about food.

This book is a toolbox for building early childhood programs that foster sentiments of justice and fairness in leaders, teachers, and young children.

This book is a humorous and sharp account of adopting and raising a son with Down syndrome from the Maine foster care system. The author provides an access point to start the debate about adopting a child with special needs and also discusses her decision to home-school.

The author gives an account of parenting three children who are deaf or hard of hearing.

This book examines how to have successful family-professional partnerships with all families. It explores seven partnership concepts and features the perspectives of both families and professionals.

This book demystifies hearing loss and offers supportive approaches to caring for the child and the whole family. It is written from the perspective of a pediatric audiologist who has diagnosed hearing loss in newborns and young children, and who has shaped clinical best practices during his career.
